The NVVMA began in 1975 as a non-profit organization to:

-Promote within the veterinary profession the highest degree of skill, integrity and service to the public.

-Enlighten the public concerning veterinary medicine and to disseminate information for the benefit of the public regarding appropriate care and treatment of animals.

-Improve and elevate the standards of veterinary medicine within the Commonwealth of Virginia

-Foster the cultivation of professional fellowship among veterinarians in the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Please take advantage of a local veterinarian- they are an invaluable resource as you develop your relationship with your new pet. And they are always there for you if you have any questions or problems.

Take Your New Pet To The Vet!

An important message from your other family doctor inside...

Your New Pet

Now that you have adopted your new pet, you need to introduce her/him into your household. You should take 3-7 days to give yourselves and your pet time to acclimate to your household if all is well and the pet is healthy.

Kittens and Puppies

If you have adopted a puppy or kitten, the shelter has updated whatever exams, vaccines and deworming are due at the time, but keep in mind that your pet may need a booster vaccine, a second deworming (one deworming does not eradicate intestinal parasites), or a follow up for a medical problem. Our local shelters are wonderful at doing all they can but their ultimate goal is to adopt these animals as soon as possible, so often they have only received an initial series of vaccines and dewormings.

Adults

If you have adopted an adult pet, the shelter will give whatever core vaccines are required, but often boosters are needed within 3-4 weeks to make the vaccine 100% effective. Also, there are vaccines not given at the shelter that might be recommended for your area (eg. Lyme vaccine).

Veterinary Care

Because each pet is at a different stage of maturity when adopted, even if healthy, your pet should be evaluated by a veterinarian within a week of the adoption (sooner if any health problems).

Only The Best In Pet Care

If you already have a veterinarian, you should call them and let them know you have adopted a new pet. They will be able to recommend when the new pet should be seen.

If you do not already have a veterinarian, we can recommend local veterinarians that have a relationship with the shelter.

At this first visit you can get your microchip verified and registered, with your veterinarian being the second point of contact in case of an emergency or lost pet assistance. Many practices now have photo ID's in the patient record. The veterinarian will not only be able to discuss vaccines that are recommended for your area, but will be able to answer questions about behavior, training, diet, housebreaking, flea and tick control, heartworm preventative, and other preventative medical recommendations to keep your new pet healthy and happy.
